Westrust, a California-based retail and mixed-use developer, has completed development on the two-building office component of Nut Tree Village in Vacaville, CA.

The two-story buildings consist of 40,000 square feet of office suites, some of which will be occupied by the regional offices of MetLife Resources. The properties are within the 333,000-square-foot Nut Tree Village Center, which includes more than 40 retailers and restaurants.

John Quick and Brooks Pedder of Colliers International are handling leasing for the office buildings.
